Chapter 436: The Ascension of the Eighth Arm

The Transformation

Sung Jin-Woo's evolution continued to transcend even his previous forms. His eight arms, each more powerful and divine than the last, now extended from his body in a display of absolute mastery over his own essence and the Godverse. Each arm shimmered with divine jewels, golden in color, reflecting the boundless power he now commanded. The additional arms were a symbol of his unparalleled dominion, allowing him to control and create with even greater precision. Each arm moved with godlike grace, wielding his weapons of power, manipulating the very fabric of the Godverse itself.

The White Hair of Eternity

His once jet-black hair had now transformed into pure white—a manifestation of his ascension to godhood. The strands flowed like cascading silver light, each strand gleaming with divine energy. His hair no longer simply framed his face; it became an extension of his aura, radiating an ethereal glow. It symbolized his perfect balance between light and darkness, creation and destruction, life and death.

The transformation into white hair was not just a physical change but an embodiment of his boundless wisdom and celestial power. The flowing hair whispered the tales of the cosmos, of realms born and destroyed, of ages that had passed and those yet to come. It was a constant reminder that Sung Jin-Woo had long transcended mortal limits.

The Eight-Armed Divinity

Sung Jin-Woo’s eight arms were not just a physical manifestation; they were a reflection of his divine might. Each arm, adorned with golden divine jewels, possessed a unique power—one was capable of manipulating the very elements of existence, another controlled the flow of time itself, and the others commanded forces of creation, destruction, shadow, light, and even divine will.

The First Two Arms: Clad in silver armor, they held the Sword of Dominion and the Scepter of Eternity, symbols of his ultimate rule and authority.

The Other Arms: The remaining six arms were the extensions of his will, radiating divine energy and offering blessings, creating life, and ensuring the safety of all in his Godverse.

A Cosmic Presence

With the addition of his eighth arm and the transformation of his hair into white, Sung Jin-Woo became an even more formidable being. His presence extended far beyond the confines of his physical form, becoming one with the infinite cosmos.

Aura of Power: The very atmosphere around him seemed to bend, reacting to his godlike presence. His eight arms moved with supreme grace, creating and destroying in tandem.

Radiance of Eternity: The white hair shimmered with an otherworldly glow, illuminating the surrounding realms. It was as though Sung Jin-Woo was the very center of the Godverse, the source of its infinite energy.

The Awe of the Godverse

The Reaction of the Denizens: The celestial beings of the Godverse, from angels to dark angels, and emissaries of all forms, bowed in unison as they felt the overwhelming power emanating from his form. His very existence was the definition of perfection, an ideal that they could only aspire to but would never reach.

Visitors from the Outer Multiverse: Even the strongest beings from outside the Godverse, upon their entry, felt the overwhelming presence of Sung Jin-Woo. His form, now adorned with eight arms and radiant white hair, was a cosmic spectacle that made all but the most powerful bow before him.

With his eight arms and white hair, Sung Jin-Woo was no longer just a deity—he was the embodiment of perfection and absolute rule. His transformation signified that he had ascended beyond even the gods themselves. His power was infinite, his form beyond comprehension, and his presence unparalleled. The Most Supreme Deity, with his eight arms and shining white hair, had truly become the ruler of all that existed.
